Our understanding of climate change is built on many other fields of science. This symposium will explore the intersection of climate science, statistics, and satellite remote sensing of the Earth.

June 8–10, 2009
Annenberg Presidential Conference Center at Texas A&M University

For more information including program and registration: atmo.tamu.edu/climate